WORLD PEACE CONFERENCE NOW PROPOSED CRAZED MAN TERRORIZES POPULACE

NORTH HIGHLANDS AND OFFICERS ARE HELD AT BAY HOUR

Gregory Flourishes a Pistol at Crowd and Delivers Lecture

CAME HOME FROM WORK TODAY, ILL

Dashed Into House and Obtained Gun and Ammunition

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 7—Lawrence Gregory, 32, a metallurgist, suffering from a nervous breakdown, today held part of North Highlands and a large number of police and deputies at bay with a pistol for nearly an hour before being overpowered.

When the excitement had subsided street, where Gregory broke was in a state of nervous prostration and Gregory was in the city jail for safekeeping.

Gregory, who is in the employ of the Sloss Sheffield steel and iron company at its North Birmingham plant,
suddenly became ill while at work
Monday morning, according to police reports, and was taken to his home on Allen street by two employees in the office.

Immediately on arriving home, Gregory dashed into his room and came out with a pistol, shooting wildly through the house. By a quick move, however he was shoved back into the room and locked up, but loud threats that he would kill himself caused members of his family to open the door.

With the way open, Gregory then dashed out of the house with the pistol
and his pockets full of ammunition, which he had stored there during the interim, and was away into the street.

Hiding behind trees and other vantage points across the street, he shot up and down into houses, barely missing O. L. Vest, a resident on his street.

Police and deputies in the meantime had been called but as each moved to close in on him he brandished his pistol, fired a shot or two and frightened them away.

At times, according to eye witnesses, he made no effort to shoot at all and seemed bent on delivering a religious lecture. Lest he be interrupted, however, he preached with the muzzle of his weapon pressed against his heart, now and then turning it toward his audience, which stood behind porch posts and at vantage places on the street.

STUDENTS TO SPEAK AT SCHOOL MONDAY

Students from Morgan County high school, Decatur high school and Albany high school will participate in the preliminaries of the National Oratorical contest, sponsored by leading newspapers of the country at Albany high school gymnasium Monday evening at eight o'clock.

The purpose of the contest is to create in the youth of the land a greater respect for the national constitution.
The winner of the county elimination contest will compete in this congress-sional district for a gold medal properly inscribed. The congressional district winner will compete for the state
prizes, the first of which is a scholarship valued at $1,000 to any college in the state. The state winner will be sent to Washington to compete for the national prizes in June. The first prize will be $3,500 in cash. The contest in Washington will be honored by the presence of President and Mrs. Coolidge.

DO YOU JUDGE ON A HUNCH?

An Editorial

When you pass judgment on a man, what makes you know he is alright, and what makes you think he is?
Stop and think for a moment of two men that you have judged that way.
The first fellow is a real chap, the kind of a man you like to meet, to do business with, always has a smile for you, and a cheerful word. Sure, you like him, but not for these virtues alone. There's something else. It is his appearance. He makes a right kind of impression in everything he does.

He is always neat and perfect in his dress, his home is a boast to the community; he is a real go-getter. If you were asked about him you would have a quick answer ready: "You bet I know him; he is all right."
The other fellow you are thinking of is a likeable sort of chap. You like to meet him, spend an occasional half-hour with him—still, there is a different feeling. Apparently, he is as intelligent as the other fellow, as aggressive, but you haven't the same impression of him. He doesn't seem to do things the way the other fellow does them. He doesn't corner. He is inclined to be a little careless about the things that help you form your impression of him. He hasn't the pride the other fellow has, his personal appearance lacks the other fellow's crispness. You are inclined to think that perhaps he might be slipping all along the line in everything he does. When asked about him your answer is: "Yes, I know him; I think he is all right."

It is his appearance that keeps you from saying, "I know." It is the pride that the other fellow takes in doing all things well and dressing well that makes you know that he is alright, and it is the lack of this same pride in the other fellow that makes you only think that he is alright.

Their appearance gave you a hunch. It was what they did and the way they did it, the clothes they wore and the way they wore them that counted.

BIBLE AND FLAG PRESENTED TO SCHOOL BY THE JUNIOR ORDER

Before a large company which entirely filled the auditorium of the Albany high school, the Albany Junior Order of American Mechanics formally presented the school with a Bible and an American flag. The meeting was presided over by Judge F. M.
Hamilton, a prominent member of the Junior Order. The singing was under the direction of Prof. E. W. Lax-son. A number of patriotic hymns were sung at the opening, followed with prayer by Dr. James D. Hunter, pastor of the Central Methodist church.

The first address was by E. W.
Godbey, who had been chosen to present the flag. Mr. Godbey made an earnest and forceful address calling attention to what a great mission Americans are called to perform. The flag was received in a graceful speech by Prof. L. H. Duyek, who took the place of Superintendent Wade, who was unavoidably absent.

The presentation of the Bible was made in an appropriate address by Rev. J. W. Carl, pastor of the First Methodist church of Town Creek, who
a few years ago was pastor of the South Albany Methodist church. The Bible was received in behalf of the school by Miss Amelia Troy, librarian, and one of the veteran teachers in the Albany high school. Miss Troy's address was carefully prepared and was greatly enjoyed by the large audience.

RECORD AUDIENCES HEAR DR. BATEMAN

Dr. R. J. Bateman addressed record audiences at the Decatur Baptist church yesterday. There were 103 men in the Brotherhood Bible class at the Sunday school hour when he spoke to the school on "Sinning with God." He made a passionate appeal for those present to stand with God in this world that He might stand with them in the next world.

At eleven o'clock the house was crowded again with a large percentage of men when Dr. Bateman spoke on "The Center of Eternity." His text was Luke 23:35 "And the people stood beholding. He saved others let Him save Himself." The speaker said in part:

"In all history, previous to the cross,
all that transpired pointed to calvary. Jesus Christ on the cross marks the center of eternity. I would that we could disengage from every thought and behold Him, that the holiest of us shall bring our righteousness and stand there, that the most wicked shall bring our guilt and stand there, and that the man with the broken heart
shall come too.

"I am sure that I am lifting the one hope of the world. There is no other name given among men whereby men may be saved. I am sure He is able to save to the uttermost all that come unto Him.

"Let us remember the power of sin.
It gags men and drives them along to wickedness. It drives a man away from home; away from fortune, away
from integrity; it makes him a thief;
it drives him away from God. Sin put Jesus on the cross. Its tremendous power that makes a woman sacrifice that for which other women die. You should be seriously concerned about your sons and daughters. Out of pity Jesus said 'let me go and suffer for them.'

"The cross also reveals to us God's love. You will never understand how God loves men until you see calvary.
"It is horrible to view the hundreds of sick across whose bodies are writ-

NEGRO IS SHOT AND DANGEROUSLY HURT

Shelly Johnson, 19, a well known negro, is lying at the point of death from a gun shot wound in the left side, just under the heart. Lewis Orr, another negro, is being sought by officers as the person who wounded Johnson. The shooting took place on Railroad street, near the union depot
soon after dark Sunday evening.

It is said Johnson was on his way to a local restaurant, where he was employed and that he was in the company of two negro women when he was shot. His assailant disappeared in the darkness toward the Tennessee River as policemen reached the scene of the shooting.

Lyceum Number at High School

The third and last of the lyceum entertainments of the Decatur Parent-Teacher Association will be given at the high school auditorium this evening.

The program will consist of a number of musical numbers, by a well known company.

Three Stores Are Entered by Thieves

Seeking hardware at the H. & H. machine shop on Moulton street and at the McNeece blacksmith shop on First avenue, and hard cash at the Patterson Mercantile company on Moulton street, thieves entered these three establishments late Sunday night.
They received no cash at the Patterson Mercantile company, but not until the cash drawer and one cash register had been searched diligently.
About $100 dollars worth of material was taken from the H. & H. machine shop. From the McNeece blacksmith shop a number of valuable tools were missing.

51 TRUE BILLS ARE REPORTED OUT BY THE GRAND JURORS

Laws of State Are Being Violated All Over
Morgan County

CITIZENS ASKED
TO RENDER HELP

Jury Did Its "Best" to Bring Violators to Bar of Justice

Laws of the state are being violated in every part of the county and "we have done our best to bring these violators to the bar of justice," according to the report of the Morgan County grand jury, made to Judge Horton, of the circuit court late Saturday, and made public today. The jury found a total of 51 true bills, the report said,
after 75 cases had been docketed.

The report follows:
We, the grand jury impeached by your honor at this term of court, herewith make our final report, and beg to be discharged.

We have examined into all indictable offenses which have been brought to our knowledge, and as a result thereof
we have docketed 75 cases, have examined a large number of witnesses, and returned 51 true bills. We have given our work serious thought, and have discharged our duties as we thought best, and the good of the county demanded.

We did not make a thorough examination of the fee books of the different county officers, owing to the fact that at present there is one of the state examiners from Montgomery here auditing all of the county books, and as we understand the law, his report will be given to the next grand jury.

We have examined the county jail,
and find it safe for the confinement
of prisoners, and well kept.

We find that the laws of the state are being violated throughout the county and in the cities, and we have done our best to bring these violators to the bar of justice. In some cases the evidence has not been sufficient for us to find a bill, but we are satisfied that our investigation will bear fruit. We find particularly that the prohibition law is being violated
in all parts of the county, and we call upon all the good citizens to give their hearty support and cooperation to the officers in the enforcement of the law.
We realize that all officers who are charged with law enforcement need the cooperation of the citizenship of the county.

We have worked diligently, and feel that our duty has been discharged. We desire to thank the Sheriff's office for the prompt and courteous attention which it has given the summons issued by the grand jury.

We desire to thank your honor for your able charge, which enabled us to understand our work, and come to a speedy termination thereof.

We desire to thank County Solicitor T. C. Almon for his services and help during our deliberations.

Respectfully submitted,
John P. Matlock,
Foreman.

We report unto your honor, that we had summoned before us all the witnesses given us by your honor, and find that none knew of any violations of the law sufficient to indict anybody.
We further recommend that all the officers both State and County, be careful in their personal conduct so they will not be subject to criticism
by the people of the county.

Respectfully submitted,
John P. Matlock,
Foreman.

THOUSANDS ATTEND SERVICES SUNDAY AT VARIOUS CHURCHES

Banner Attendance Day
Is Reported by the Local Pastors

SUNDAY SCHOOLS
HAVE BIG CLASSES

Many Are Beginning or Just Closing Their
Easter Revivals

Sunday was a banner attendance
day for the Sunday schools and the churches of the Twin Cities. The day was fine and in addition the congregations of the churches extended special invitations to the people of the cities to visit their churches.

Another contributing cause of the large numbers at the churches Sunday was the fact that just at this time many of the churches are closing or just beginning their pre-Easter revival meetings. Others of the churches were in the midst of their Lenten services.
Still others of the local churches are planning revival services to begin in a short time.

Two of these churches, the South-side Baptist church and the First Christian church, are to begin their special meetings very soon.

The Southside church opens its revival Sunday, while the Christian church begins its revival Easter Sunday.

Perhaps the largest of the church gatherings Sunday were those at the Central Methodist church, where a two weeks revival is now in progress,
at the Central Baptist church where the Higgenbotham-Elliott revival closed
Sunday night and at the Decatur
Baptist church where a stirring revival is now being led by the pastor,
Dr. C. C. Davidson and Dr. R. J. Bateman, pastor of the First Baptist church of Asheville.

Not since the state Baptist convention of 1920 was held there, had there ever been such large crowds at this church as heard Dr. Bateman Sunday, at the Sunday school, at the 11 o'clock service and at the Sunday night service. It was the Sunday night service that broke all attendance records at that church since 1920.

The Central Baptist meetings of the revival have all been largely attended, but Sunday night, closing night for the revival an unusually large company was present.

If large attendance is the beginning of a revival is to be taken as good evidence of a good meeting, and it generally is; the Central Methodist church is about to experience a great revival season. On Sunday morning, and, especially Sunday night, great crowds flocked to that church.

At the First Christian church, the Sunday morning attendance was the largest at any time, except during special revival services.

Child Welfare Association, is in Morgan County looking after a number of needy children with a view of tak-

quarters of the Association, unless the children are provided homes in this part of the state. Miss Ludlow has

Splendid Sermons Are Delivered by Dr. Jas. D. Hunter

Dr. J. D. Hunter

In speaking of the life work and accomplishments of Dr. Hunter, and that preacher's concern to accomplish great evangelistic service in his ministry, one of the members of the Central Methodist church said:

"Mr. Hunter has always held to the ideal that every pastor should also be an evangelist. Considerable opportunity was afforded him in the development of this natural tendency. He held special revival meetings for other pastors as time afforded and was appointed Evangelistic director of the North Alabama conference following the Centenary campaign. This pastor had an urgent request from the pastor of the Court Street Methodist church, Montgomery, one of the oldest of our churches and the largest church in the Alabama Conference, to lead the special Pre-Easter Services covering the exact date of the meeting in his own church, April 6-20.

"But realizing that there are no better people nor no field more promising and fertile for the progressive Christian worker, Dr. Hunter consented to return to North Alabama
to take the place of the Central pastorate."

"Believing that it is possible for an ambitious boy to gain an education and make his way in the world in spite of tremendous difficulties, Dr. Hunter, has seen some of his dreams come true. The youngest of a large family raised on the farm, told by his father that he might leave home and the responsibilities there if he could make his way through school, this country
boy finished high school and college and took his Theological training in Vanderbilt University, paying the bills
on his own initiative."

Epigrams From Hunter's Sunday
Sermons

"Many of our prayers are spoiled
by the shadow of our lives."

"If we would pray more we would criticize less."

"Try praying for the person you do not like."

"Things do not happen in the
that would not happen if men did not pray."

"More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."

"Spiritual power not worked up but prayed down."

"If we have a revival here that amounts to much it will be because somebody prays."

"Prayer melts differences and dif-
fuses prejudices."

"The bigger the undertaking the greater the challenge."

"It is the lure of the impossible that stirs the best in men."

"The desire to be remembered is latent in the souls of men."

"It is bad enough to be forgotten
after you leave this world, and I am sure I do not want to be forgotten
while I live."

"Some Christian people are so still that the world does not know that they are alive."

"Erect your monument in the heart of humanity."

PEPPER RESOLUTION TO ADVISE COOLIDGE TIME IS OPPORTUNE

Republican Senator to Press for Action
to Curb War

THREE THINGS ARE
TO BE CONSIDERED

Economic Feature Has
Been Deliberately
Left Out of Plan

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 7—A joint resolution, proposing a world peace conference, was introduced today by Senator Pepper, republican, Pennsylvania.

The senate would advise the President, under the resolution, that the time is suitable for the assembling of a conference, similar to the two held in the past at the Hague.

The resolution set out these three things to be considered:

1. Further reduction of all armament.

2. Means of emphasizing the importance and influence of international law.

3. Plans for strengthening and establishing a world court along the line of the Hague tribunal.

In a brief explanation, Senator Pepper said the economic feature has been deliberately left out because it was covered in a similar resolution by Senator Borah, republican, Idaho. The proposal for discussion of a world
court, he said, was intended to obviate the necessity for attempting to satisfy the widely diverse views which exist upon the League of Nations.

24 ARE ACCUSED OF MURDER AND RIOT

(Associated Press)
JOHNSTON, Pa., April 7—Carrying concealed deadly weapons, murder and riot were charges made against 24
men, said to be members of the Ku Klux Klan, by district attorney D. C.
Weimer here this afternoon before Alderman E. L. Levergood. The prisoners, arrested in connection with the fight between visiting Klansmen and the people of Lillie Saturday night, during which two inhabitants of the village were killed, will be given a preliminary hearing later.

In event they waive hearing for court, Alderman Levergood said he would hold them without bail.

The information made by the district attorney charged the men met together to disturb the peace and riot.

BURTON ATTITUDE IS NO NEW THING

On his way to his home in Sheffield
Judge J. H. Nathan was in the Twin Cities for a short while Saturday.
He stated that for 15 years he had been familiar with the attitude of Theodore Burton of Cleveland, Ohio, who is now a member of the national house of representatives, toward developments at Muscle Shoals and that he was not surprised when Burton
did all he could to defeat the McKenzie bill.

"Mr. Burton" said Judge Nathan,
"used to write me, that it would be better for the government to pay the freight on all shipping on the Tennessee river, than to undertake to develop Muscle Shoals."

Judge Nathan stated that the fact Burton had always been an enemy to Tennessee River improvement was well known in congress and that for that reason he had little weight against the Ford bill.

MODERN TEETH GIVE TROUBLE— SHOULD BE GIVEN MORE EMPLOYMENT

The change of the diet of mankind from the tough meats, roots and herbs consumed many generations ago (some rather tough meats are still to be found) to the soft foods of today is held responsible for much of the trouble experienced with the teeth.

It is held that the grinders are not used sufficiently in these days to keep them in first-class condition. In support of this contention it is pointed out that the people who have a great deal of chewing of foods to do, still have good teeth even in this day and time.

Some have laid the decline of modern teeth to the tooth brush. From London came a report recently in which a noted dentist said we would be much better off if tooth brushes had never been used.

But the dentist in question continues and says: "What the people need is a little more old-fashioned stuff, and they would not need a tooth brush at all."

The evident meaning being that tooth brushes could be dispensed with if the hard, tough foods of the distant past were again to come into general use.

Not many people would want to exchange their tooth brushes and the modern way of keeping the teeth in condition, for tougher food. Most would prefer to worry along with bad and indifferent teeth rather than attempt to chew hard grains, roots and herbs for food.

It might be suggested that harder chewing and more of it upon the foods we now eat would help some. If more time and effort were put forth three times a day, or as often as people eat, thoroughly masticating food, it would be better for the teeth and very much better for the general health.

But in the meantime, until the teeth are used more, it would not seem to be a good idea to part with tooth brushes.

CHLORINE GAS IN THE WATER IS HIGHLY BENEFICIAL

Not all the forces of nature—and probably none of them—were ever intended to be put to destructive uses. The deadly chlorine gas used in the great war, is a life giver if used as nature doubtless intended. The value of this gas in destroying deadly germs in the human system is very high. It was stated very recently by Dr. Perolio, director of the Tennessee Valley laboratory that he was always glad to notice a strong odor of chlorine gas in his drinking water, as he knew that the gas had killed many germs, that were they to go into the system alone would cause much harm, and possibly death. When the Doctor's attention was called to the strong odor of chlorine gas in the city water here recently, Dr. Perolio said had the citizens realized the beneficial effects of that gas they would not have been disturbed in the least by its presence in their drinking water. A recent editorial in The Birmingham News referring to chlorine gas, is in part as follows:

"Experiments in the use of poisonous gases conducted by the medical research department of the chemical warfare service of the army have about proven conclusively that the use of chlorine gas in small quantities will cure colds, coughs, asthma, bronchial troubles and whooping-cough. Credit for the discovery is given Col. Vedder, chief of the division. His report says that of 388 patients experimented upon, who were suffering with common colds in the head, 288, or 75 per cent, were cured by the poison gas; 91 per cent improved, and only about 9 showed no improvement. Of 127 cases of acute laryngitis and pharyngitis, 99 were cured, 24 showed improvement, and 4 showed no improvement."

ment. Of 241 cases of acute bronchitis, 192 were cured, 47 showed improvement, and only two showed no change. Eight out of nine cases of whooping-cough were cured and the other improved; and 9 out of 11 cases of influenza were cured, while the other 2 cases were given relief.

"An air-chlorinating machine invented by Col. Vedder was used, and is being developed for use in hospitals, but is too cumbersome and expensive for private use. Experiments are now being made in putting up glass 'pears' of thin hermetically sealed little tubes, each containing a small quantity of the gas, graduated for the size of the room in which the patient might be. The glass tube would be broken, the gas released, and the treatment taken in this way.

"A Washington dispatch says that senators and representatives have been taking the treatment and have found quick relief. Lieut. Col. Harry L. Gilchrist of the army has maintained a station at the capitol, and has administered the doses. Senators Robinson, Underwood, Pat Harrison, Watson of Indiana, Phipps, Pittman and Curtis, and Representatives Drewry, Anthony, Ben Johnson and others have taken the treatment for colds and the like, and report to have been greatly benefited.

"Of the 900 cases treated by the army surgeons in developing the remedy, 75 per cent have been cured at once and 20 per cent helped, while only 5 per cent was not responsive.

"The surgeons state that the treatment is simple and will cost not more than 6 cents per person for individual treatment; and the chlorine gas released in appropriate quantities in hospitals, theatres and where large bodies congregate, is expected to prevent the 'catching' of colds and the like.

"Not only is it beneficial to humans, but it has been found valuable in the treatment of distemper in horses. A severe epidemic of distemper broke out among the horses of the brigade of artillery at Fort Hoyle, Md., and 40 per cent of the horses were affected. Three days treatment with chlorine gas, of an hour each, brought about a complete cure.

"Thus, out of the most dreadful development of the war comes good to humanity. The common 'cold' has remained a profound mystery to the medical profession. They know the symptoms, and they know it is 'catching,' and sometimes appears without exposure to other colds. They know that certain treatments will aid in driving it away—sometimes—but there is no certain cure. From the debilitating colds, and the worse and malignant form known as 'flu,' a train of evils may come to plague the debilitated person who survives one or the other. If indeed a real cure has been found—and from the report it looks as though there has—it is in itself mighty near worth the cost of the war."

AT REST

News from Indianapolis bears word that "Little Orphant Annie" is no more. A woman 74 years of age has died, and the event is news the country over. For Mary Alice Gray was the original character who came, 63 years ago, to live at the home of the Rileys, and whose stories of goblins and witches so impressed young James Whitcomb that he wove them into what is probably the best known verse.

There are few poems that make a stronger appeal to the fancy. From the first line, where it is told that "Little Orphant Annie's come to our house to stay," the reader becomes a part of the picture, so that by the time he's old "n' the goblins will get you ef you don't watch out," he is ready to believe that he can hear the little minstrel as she tells about the dire calamity that befell the little boy who "wouldn't say his prayers, and of the catastrophic end of the little girl who mocked her elders.

But Little Orphant Annie will no longer wash the cups and saucers up or brush the crumbs away. Of her life after she was grown, and one of her auditors had become Mr. Riley, the sign painter, and later Riley, the poet, we, of course, do not know, but if nothing happened to commend her to us during those years we are certain that by the tales told around the Riley hearthstone she more than "earned her bread and keep" from the world for every day she spent in it.—Nashville Tennessean.

ten death. There is no remedy for the awful disease. But god has a remedy for your souls that is adequate. 'There is a balm in Gilead.' 'There is a fountain filled with blood.' Any man may be saved if he will throw himself on Jesus Christ. No man is hopeless.

At the evening hour the combined auditoriums were taxed to their utmost capacity and all available chairs were placed in the aisles. Dr. Bateman's subject was: "Home Again," Text Luke 15:18-20, "And he came to himself and said: I will arise and go to my father. Man is not normal when he is at variance with God. Christianity should be the normal expectation of every man and woman. It is abnormal not to be a Christian. There are many agencies leading men astray.

"First there is the far country. Young people hear of it through the book, the picture and the story. The greatest assassin is the man who would influence your boy to leave home for the far country. When a man goes into a far country sin makes a change in him. His heart and soul, his personality change. A financial bankrupt is pitiable but a moral bankrupt is most pitiable. No man can live apart from and not eventually come to want. There are many things that money cannot buy. When a man is away from God he is outside of himself.

Dr. Bateman held his large audience composed of the congregations of the churches of Decatur and many from Albany, in rapt attention as he painted pictures of the awfulness of sin, of its ravages in modern life and he pictured the son returning to his father's house.

The services will continue each day at 9:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Teams Will Meet Tuesday Afternoon

The ball game prevented last Friday by rain between the Decatur high school and the Athens Aggies will be played at 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon on the new diamond of the Decatur high school. This is to be the first local ball game of the season.

Why Madge Flamed Out at Dicky.

THIS sneer in Dicky's voice when he spoke of Mrs. Marks and her inquiries concerning me, was the proverbial last straw laid upon my wrath.

That I had succeeded in convincing him of my ignorance of his movements during the last half hour was plain, and my anger, which had been smoldering, flamed out by my will-power, blazed uncontrollably at this evidence of his deception.

But a few minutes before he had been carrying on a confidential, low-toned conversation with my flamboyant neighbor for whom he was now expressing such languid contempt. And he had followed it—if the evidence of my own eyes had not failed me—with a surfeitous interview in the hallway with beautiful Mollie Fawcett, the closest friend of my irrepressible neighbor.

His complacency at having deceived me so patly was a little too much, and with a smothered exclamation I sprang to my feet and looked at him steadily, although I felt myself shaking. But I managed to control my voice, however, although I was horribly afraid it might break into nervous sobs at any second.

"Is that your idea of fairness?" I asked quietly.

Into his eyes flashed a startled, apprehensive look.

"What do you mean by that?" he asked.

"I think you know very well," I replied. "But if you wish to explain, I'll endeavor to satisfy your wish. I mean that your air of contempt for Mrs. Marks is a trifle—thin, shall we say?—considering the circumstances."

Dicky Is Furious.

Flaming anger was in his face now, all the more so because of the humiliation which the discovery of my knowledge brought him.

"Then—I infer—you were not asleep just now, as you pretended."

"Four infernoes in a row, I repeat," I took refuge in the quotation, for I found I had difficulty in marshalling my thoughts, and as I answered I slipped past Dicky into the living-room and sat down heavily.

A quick recollection came to me of that night when Dicky, weak and wounded, had staggered into the apartment, and I had discovered that his head was bandaged with two dainty feminine handkerchiefs and a woman's embroidered neckerchief.

It must have been Mollie Fawcett who came to his rescue then!

ly in the big armchair, I felt that my knees would buckle beneath me if I kept a standing posture any longer.

Dicky stood still for a few seconds, they he followed me, and I saw that his hands were pushed deep into his pockets, and his head thrust forward—sure signs of his anger.

Your little excursion into the hall—he leaned abruptly—"I suppose the search for the headache tablets was a blind also."

"I didn't need them," I acquiesced coolly.

"Will you stop right there?" "Then you admit"—he was storming now—"that you've been playing the contemptible role of eavesdropper?"

"If I have," I returned imperturbably, the while I wondered how long I could keep from screaming out at him, "you surely must admit that my efforts were astonishingly rewarded."

"I suppose you saw Miss Fawcett," he said thickly, "but if you did, you've no right to judge."

So the girl in the hall HAD been Mollie Fawcett after all!

I did not hear the rest of Dicky's agitated sentence, but when he had finished I cried out chokingly: "No right to judge! But I shall take the right! All these years I have kept quiet, smothered things, pretended I didn't care, but this is too much—to find out that you left the farm the first minute you could after I had gone, and came up here expecting that I would not be here, and then I find you whispering in the hall to a girl you have known only a few days!"

"Will you stop right there?"

Dicky demanded, his face ashen, his eyes narrowed and glittering with anger. There was something about him that silenced me in spite of myself, and he held me while he spoke slowly and with effort.

"I can stand just about so much of this asinine nonsense," he said, "before I lose my temper. You're thinking, but I'll be boiled in oil before I'll tell you what the real dope is—now. I was going to tell you the whole thing the night I came home with the bandaged head."

OF all the flowers that bloom on earth, which do you think the loveliest? One may answer, "The humble dandelion that stars the green grass with gold these Spring days!" Another may exclaim, "Nothing so common for me! I love the regal rose!" But both will agree that there is no flower of field or greenhouse half, so lovely as a lovely girl. Flowerlike she lifts her face to the sky and the sun seems to flood its purest gold on her. Which girl? Ah—THAT is the question! The only one who can answer is YOU!

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT The Red-Headed Girl

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

THE red-headed gal—she ain't what she used to be." That's what old Bob Henderson, the Alaska sourdough, told everybody he met when he ran down to San Francisco for a bit of fresh meat and some January strawberries a week or so ago.

"Well, yes," said the old sourdough, "I could feel to relish some fresh pork chops or maybe a little taste of spareribs, sprinkled with sage, and I sure want some lettuce. And I'm going to have a strawberry shortcake before I go back to the snow, if I have to hunt the whole town over for one. But I really wanted to see when I got down here was an old-fashioned red-headed girl with freckles as big as a sausage and a gingham dress. My sister wrote me that her girl was sixteen now and said she was as red-headed as ever, and I wanted a glimpse of it. Say, I fair drept about them freckles all the way down on the boat, and when I got here, there she was at the pier to meet me."

"Oh, yes, her hair was red all right, but it was bobbed, and she was wearing Russian boots and a set of furs that meant a year's digging for old Bob."

What a Disappointment!

"Tain't the same," he said. "Why, there ain't a freckle on her face, not even across the bridge of her nose; and as for gingham, I don't believe she ever saw a piece of it in her life."

"Spunk!—I'll bet you could call her a born fool and she wouldn't know enough to get mad about it. No—the red-headed gal—she's sure changed. I'm going back to Alaska and think about her the way she used to be."

Poor, old sourdough! What a shock and what a disappointment. And all for nothing, too, because, of course, the red-headed girl is just exactly what she used to be, always is now and always will be. She can't help it—she was born that way.

She may know how to camouflage the freckles, but they are there all right when she's the right age, and you can tell just the temper she has by the color of her hair. Take a nice Spring morning with the sun shining and the violets beginning to bloom—and the red-headed girl's hair looks like a sheet of gold—unless you tell her the violets are not blooming for her and she'd better stay at home and wash the dishes and then her hair looks like a fire burning up the house and not a fire department in sight.

After cleaning the shed, spread on a well-buttered griddle and broil over the coals, or under the gas broiler. Slip the fish on a hot dish, dust with pepper and salt and dot with butter, garnish with fresh peas and lemon quarters. Take the fish roe and put it on to cook in cold salted water and when it begins to boil cook eight minutes, drain and fry in hot fat. For the pie put up the short lengths of enough fresh rhubarb to make three heaping cups. Plunge the rhubarb into boiling water and boil up once, then drain. Line the pie plate with good crust, then the rhubarb and add a cupful of sugar, and three tablespoonfuls of honey, put on the top crust and bake as usual.

After breaking up the shrimps mix them in a little mayonnaise, with a teaspoonful of chopped celery leaves added and spread on toast rounds.

The boiled sweet potatoes may be quartered, placed in a buttered baking dish dusted with pepper, salt and sugar, dotted with butter and a little honey, poured over all and browned in the oven.

The sweetbreads—one or two pair—should be par-boiled in salted water twenty minutes then plunged into cold water, trimmed and sliced in thick slices. Make a rich cream sauce not too thick. Add a chopped hard-boiled egg, a teaspoonful of onion juice, and a quarter-pound of mushrooms that have been sautéed in butter. The boiled asparagus is to be drained then placed on a buttered baking dish, dusted with pepper, salt and grated cheese, then placed in the oven long enough to melt and brown lightly.

Winifred Black

Temper! Of course she has a temper—the red-headed girl. She wouldn't be worth a snap if she hadn't. And she has wit, too, and it doesn't take her six months to make up her mind. She either likes you or she hates you—there's no medium course for the red-headed girl.

She's as quick as a flash—mad as a hornet one minute and loves you to death the next. She isn't afraid of anything that walks or flies or swims. No, her judgment isn't particularly good. That isn't her long suit—judgment—but her heart's all right and so's her energy. If you want a real friend choose a red-headed girl, but look out that her eyes are not green.

He Left Too Soon

Brown eyes, blue eyes, hazel eyes, gray eyes—yes, she's all right. But a red-headed girl with green eyes—say farewell to her if you don't want to say farewell to comfort and to peace of mind.

True? Why of course it's true. Why shouldn't it be? What is it makes the freckles and the red hair—it's the iron in her blood and that's the same thing that gives her the ginger, oh, no, I forgot, it isn't ginger nowadays, it's pep—in her disposition.

You went home too soon, Mr. Sourdough. If you'd taken a little while to get acquainted you would have discovered that the red-headed girl you were looking for was right there all the time.

PERSONALITY is something that every woman desires to possess. The woman who lacks charm and feels this lack, often finds herself hopelessly at a loss to know what to do to change her outlook on life and her effect on others.

She longs for a magnetic personality—the kind that draws others to her and makes them want to be with her, and she doesn't know how to begin.

No woman who is nervous and jumps can be magnetic. The woman who fairly draws others to her and makes them want to be around her, is the woman who is calm and smooth and unexcitable.

Think this over. Think of the women among your friends whom you find most delightful. They are invariably the women whose calm repose bespeaks the smooth, even temper and the calm resourceful mind.

How different this type is from the nervous, fidgety woman who toys with the silver at the table, who invariably plays with something when she's conversing with you, whether it be the string of beads about her neck or some small trinket that she picks up. If she's dining, it's the silver on the table that furnishes her with some outlet for her nervous activity, and if she's at the theatre, she invariably tears up her program.

I'm citing these nervous symptoms, trivial enough in themselves, but most inimical to general charm, because I want you to take note of them and be sure that some of these idle, nervous habits is your own.

If you find you are a victim of them, you must set about curing yourself. It's only a matter of will power, and of building up your body health until you acquire the graceful calm that you long to possess.

If you lead a regular, healthy life, if you eat plenty of good wholesome food and get your proper amount of sleep, you should find no difficulty in doing away with troublesome and charm-destroying nerves.

Keep your ideal restful repose always in your mind's eye. When you realize how much more attractive this aspect is than the nervous, fidgety, jump you, you'll find it easy to put yourself through the paces necessary to acquire the calm you desire.

You feel infinitely better when you get eight hours' sleep, you know. This is your immediate reward, if you require a reward, for perhaps giving up a late party occasionally, or forcing yourself to go to bed when you feel that you'd rather sit up and finish that absorbing story you've started. The realization of how much better you'll feel tomorrow should be reward enough. Your calmer, steadier nerves and brighter eyes will endow you with charm, and you'll gradually achieve the restful personality that is normal for any perfectly healthy woman to have.

A very auspicious planetary ruler-ship obtains on this day, although it may be possible to jeopardize the best interests, by a tendency to irritable and stubborn conduct or by negligence in the signing of letters, writings or contracts. With these warnings heeded, there should be happy and flourishing conditions both in business and all other affiliations. Affectional relations are under a particularly happy augury.

YOUR HEALTH

Eat Well and Wisely and Watch Happiness Grow

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,

United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

AS I write I am on a train in Oklahoma, taking a 200-mile detour on account of a washout on the main line. It is 10 o'clock, with no diner on the train and no prospect of breakfast for hours.

The conductor is a portly, well-fed, jolly individual, who realizes that part of his job is to keep the passengers good-natured. Just now he delivered us a little lecture on the shortcomings of railroads. "The most important thing about running a railroad is to give the passengers plenty of food and water. Keep 'em fed," he said, "and they don't care how late the train may be."

Isn't it a fact that our stomachs and appetites have a lot to do with our lives?

We are unhappy if we are hungry. We are unhappy if we have eaten too much. Too little and too much food are equally harmful and distressing.

If I could control the eating habit and the food supply of the world I would have control of the death rate.

Barring accident, contagious and malignant diseases, the span of human life is just as much under intelligent control as is the period of usefulness of a piece of well-understood machinery.

Farmers have learned the importance of a balanced ration for their stock. It is illuminating to hear two farmers discuss the feeding of their animals. They know all about proteins, "heating" foods and roughage. They regulate the quantity of food to the season and to the amount of work being done by the animals.

Watch the same two farmers when they sit down to eat their own meal. You wouldn't suppose they ever knew one single thing about food values.

We can forgive the average city man if he blunders in his eating. Knowing nothing about food, he eats in dense ignorance of what is good for him. But there is no excuse for the intelligent farmer to abuse his stomach. The fact that he does eat this way proves, I expect, how unselfish he is, because it has not occurred to him to apply to his own welfare the scientific methods he uses in caring for his beasts.

Everybody should possess a reasonable knowledge of food values and proper combinations. It isn't enough to eat merely to destroy hunger or to satisfy appetite. It isn't right to eat with the sole purpose of gratifying the palate.

It may be excusable to violate the rules on Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's, on the fourth of July and perhaps an occasional feast day, but the rest of the time we should eat moderately of the foods which make bones, muscle, blood and nervous tissue.

Perhaps the greatest evil about eating is the bad practice of eating too much. It is just as wicked to overwork your digestive organs as it is to overeat your house. You can be arrested for abusing an animal; the penalty for abusing your stomach habitually may not be applied so summarily, but it is far more certain and shortened life are inevitable.

My conductor friend is right—if we are adequately fed we are happy. Certainly, if we are overfed we will live more comfortable and longer lives.

She has been advised to have an operation, but will not do so. Will you kindly advise me if proper diet and complete rest would heal this rupture? I am of the opinion that it would.

A.—There are many cases where surgical treatment is necessary in order to effect a cure, and there are other cases where medical treatment is most effective. A careful examination by your own doctor or a specialist is necessary before it can be decided which method is better in this particular case.

F. X. B. Q.—What is the cause and cure for itching of the legs?

A.—This condition may be due to errors in diet or to auto-intoxication. Consult your doctor, who will prescribe whatever treatment is necessary.

M. R. Q.—What climate would be best for a tubercular patient to live in?

A.—It would be advisable for him to spend a short time in a hospital, so he will understand just how to care for himself. There they will advise him as to the best climate for his particular condition.

PUZZLED. Q.—Would an X-ray show a blood clot on the brain?

A.—An X-ray would probably show whether a blood clot was present on the brain. I would advise you to have it taken.

MOTHER. Q.—what is the peculiar quality of yeast?

A.—Yeast is rich in vitamins. It is not without the advice of a physician.

F. M. Q.—Will the violet ray remove scars?

A.—The violet ray is not used for this purpose. X-ray, radium or the electric needle is used.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medical, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it cannot be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Today's Fashion

By VERA WINSTON

Here's an Unusual Frock for a Small Girl.

EVERY little girl likes an afternoon frock that will be different from the other frocks that her little friends wear.

Green is quite the smartest color for grown-ups, and it's equally smart for small people.

This model is in light sea-green organdy, finely tucked as to bodice and skirt. There's a panel of the plain material through the center of the skirt. Velvet leaves of darker green make an applied trimming.

Entire Family Praise Tanlac As Great Tonic

Mr. and Mrs. Goodson and 5 Children Badly Run-Down From Flu—Tanlac Built Them Up to Normal.

"Wife and I both feel that we owe a lasting debt of gratitude to the makers of Tanlac for this wonderful medicine restored our entire family to health and happiness," is the remarkable statement of Lee Goodson, a well-known business man, of 1021 Albany Ave., Waycross, Ga.

"Four years ago every member of my family was stricken down with the flu—myself, my wife and five children.

We all suffered severely and it left us fearfully weak and to a large extent without appetites. Then my kidneys began to bother me.

"Almost from the first day we took Tanlac every one of us improved rapidly and we soon regained our lost weight and strength and were enjoying fine health. In bringing back our zest for food, Tanlac also aided our digestion and served as a liver stimulant and, in my case, put my kidneys in perfect order. We all have great faith in Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 Million bottles sold.—Adv.

Birmingham, Ala.—"I first took Cardui for that tired, worn-out feeling that comes from being dreadfully run-down," says Mrs. Catherine E. Smith, of 2106 Stout Street. "Twenty-five years ago, I was suffering from womanly weakness."

"I read of Cardui in an almanac, and thought I would try it. I got a bottle and it helped me from the first. After that, during the whole of my married life, I took Cardui when I needed it."

"About four years ago, change of life came on me. I grew weaker and weaker, and was confined to my bed, where I lay on my back for days. I was told that only a severe operation could do me any good, and this depressed me very much, for I dreaded such an ordeal."

"I remembered how Cardui had helped me for female trouble in the past and I had read of how it had helped other women during change of life, so one night I told my husband to go to the drug store and get me a bottle. I began taking it at once. From the first dose I could feel myself getting stronger. I continued to take Cardui until I was entirely through this very trying period of a woman's life."

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to our friends and neighbors for the loving kindness shown us during the illness and at the time of death of our baby girl, Audrey Mae. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Little.

Women to attract must Radiate Health

BEAUTY is the magnet which draws all eyes—and back of beauty—Health—working silently—Red blood tingling through the veins—the glow of youth in the cheeks—the spring of eagerness, of vim, of vitality in the walk—the ever graceful air, unrestrained by care or worry—All the charms of beauty. All the works of health.

Men are fascinated by the charms of beauty. Women gaze with envy, secretly jealous, perhaps—wondering—hoping—praying for that attractiveness that is not theirs.

But why the wondering—the hoping—the praying for that, craved for attractiveness—that beauty. Good looks is the barometer of one's condition. Good health radiates beauty. S. S. S. purifies the blood—creates new red blood cells—rids the system of impurities which make beauty and attractiveness impossible. As women to attract must radiate health so must they keep their systems free from impurities and their red blood cells ever increasing. S. S. S. does both.

S. S. S., since 1826, has been ridding the system of impurities—pimples, blackheads, boils, eczema and rheumatism—building red blood cells—adding women to be attractive by radiating health. S. S. S. is made of carefully selected herbs and barks, scientifically prepared and proportioned. All good drug stores carry S. S. S. It is more economical to purchase the large size bottle.

membrance by the Great God of the universe than to have all the monuments of stone men might build."

"And they that turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars forever and ever."

Sunday was a day of thrills at the Central Methodist church congregation.

Two capacity audiences heard Rev. Jas. D. Hunter at the initial services. At the morning hour the pastor spoke on the place of prayer in a revival.

"Prayer is not to be looked upon as the last resort in a life crisis, neither is it words addressed to Deity," said the preacher, but it is rather "the attitude of a life, the habit of the soul the battlefield of life, the communion of the soul with the father of our spirits." The obligation to pray for one another and for the success of God's work was emphasized in the preacher's characteristic way.

"Does it do any good to pray?" "Does anything happen that would not happen if men did not pray?" were questions that went like arrow points to the hearts of the great audience.

At the evening service the auditorium was packed to its capacity when the pastor spoke on the question, "The biggest enterprise in the world. Men are lured by the challenge of the impossible." Science and business have achieved in their fields things undreamed of in days gone by, but the greatest enterprise in the world is the winning of the world to an acceptance of Jesus Christ.

"All of us would like to leave some kind of a monument when we are gone. The social butterfly and the man of the world will soon be forgotten, but the angel of mercy who goes into the homes of sorrow and suffering bringing hope and cheer will erect a monument in the heart of humanity more lasting than that of the Pyramids of Egypt."

A reference made by the speaker to the life of one of Albany's citizens who has just entered into his reward, who will be remembered because of his Christian activity by rich and poor, high and low, made a wonderful impression of the congregation. An appeal that the Christians rise in the strength of their might to put over the work of God in a big way brought the service to a close.

It was a great beginning. Twelve members came into the church on the opening day. The class will be received on Easter Sunday.

Mr. Makin showed himself a great leader of song and seldom has a singer been so cordially received. He sang two beautiful gospel solos, and was assisted by several local singers. Mrs. Meigs will meet the children every afternoon at 3:30 p. m. for a story hour and for directed play and recreation.

Tonight will be a mass meeting of the Sunday School forces when these workers will hear a special sermon by the pastor.

Shop meetings and meetings with the business women will begin on Tuesday.

Following the business session of the Men's Bible class at the local Y. M. C. A. Sunday morning, during which, the president, C. W. Matthews, appointed two committees to report next Sunday, Rev. Noble R. Edwards, the teacher spoke on the resurrection of Christ. Rev. Edwards showed that His disciples and Christ's friends looked for a body from which life had gone on the resurrection morning, instead of for a risen Savior.

The preacher declared that it looked to him as though Christ's early followers would have known, if they really believed in Christ, that He would be crucified and that He would arise from the grave. A larger attendance was present at the class than at some previous meetings.

Mrs. Joseph M. Pettie sang most acceptably, and the hymns as sung by the whole company proved to be inspiring. Miss Mary Gaden was the piano accompanist. The committee named was to bring in a report as to a teacher for the next three months and the other to draw suitable resolutions in connection with the death of A. H. Higson, a former member of the class.

The announcement of the death in Dallas, Texas, of Dr. W. M. Anderson, a prominent Presbyterian minister, was sad news to many people in this section. Dr. Anderson was a first cousin of A. H. Kelley of west Albany. Dr. Anderson was prominent in the ministry of his church in Tennessee before removing to Texas. At one time he was rector of the First Presbyterian church of Nashville. Dr. Anderson died late Saturday afternoon.

Every Girl wants a better Husband--

Every Wife wants a well-dressed Husband

Indeed, she wants the best husband in the world--a husband she can be proud of before her family, before her friends, before everybody. Stand before the mirror and see if you look like the man Mary's wishing for.

No? Then go down town, get those new clothes you have intended to buy, put them on, look in the mirror once more--and then go forth and captivate her.

Every woman knows that the road to a man's heart is through his stomach. Every man ought to know that the road to a woman's heart is through her eyes.
